Attendance Guidelines

Minimum attendance and applicability

Fictional example

Meridian Example University is fictional. These are demonstration attendance rules for CampusRAG, not official DTU or other university policies. The example rules cover the fictional 2026-2027 academic year.

Minimum attendance

Students must maintain at least 75% attendance in each course to be eligible for the end-semester examination. Attendance is calculated separately for each course; attendance from different courses cannot be combined.

Postgraduate applicability

The same minimum attendance requirement of 75% in each course applies to M.Tech and other postgraduate students, as well as to B.Tech and other undergraduate students. There is no automatic postgraduate exemption.

Record review

Students should review their attendance record every week. A suspected recording error must be reported to the course instructor within five working days of publication of the relevant attendance entry.

Attendance Guidelines

Absences and eligibility review

Medical absences

A student may request an attendance review for a documented medical absence by submitting a medical certificate to the department within seven calendar days of returning to classes. Submission does not automatically waive the 75% attendance requirement.

Laboratory participation

Laboratory attendance is recorded separately from lecture attendance. A missed assessed laboratory activity must be discussed with the laboratory instructor; a replacement activity requires instructor approval.

Eligibility notification

Departments publish provisional examination eligibility lists ten calendar days before the first end-semester examination. Students may request correction of factual attendance errors within three working days of publication.
